

Welcome. Education Agents Global Database provides a service that saves education providers both time and money.

EAGD maintains and updates a database of those who advise students wishing to study abroad. These include education agents and Government bodies.

Subscribing education providers can access this database at any time to update their own contacts database or search out new contacts in new or existing markets.

How many offices are listed in each market can be viewed by subscribers and non-subscribers alike by entering the education provider side of the site...

...and clicking the 'Stats by Country' button

Countries are listed alphabetically and the number of listings appears alongside.

To access the subscribers' area and view the functions available, let us first log in.

Providers can choose their own username and password...

...and change them whenever they choose.

We will now go through how subscribers can use the database.

Let's start by executing a search of the database...

 You can search for agents by country, by city, by organisation type...

 by the courses they recruit to...

 by the destination countries they recruit to...

...or by any combination of these criteria.

 You can also search for individual agents by name.

OK, let's search for agents who recruit to language courses and the United Kingdom.

The results can be sorted in alphabetical order by country, by city or company name.

10 listings appear on each page and the number of pages is shown on the bar below (in this case more than 10).

This button enables you to add agents to your own individual 'favourite agents' list, so that you can reference key agents quickly without the need for a search.

This second button allows you to view the agent's details in full... which we will now do.

As you can see, as well as the postal and street addresses, the telephone number, primary email addresses and, where available, the fax number and web address are also shown.

The bottom half of the form shows the details of the primary contact and, where available, the secondary contact.

In addition, you can also see to what level of course the agent recruits and to which destination countries the agent recruits.

If you wanted to email all of the agents found by your search (to highlight your institution, a promotion or for whatever reason), this can be done easily.

These buttons allow you to download either the email or postal addresses of the entire found set in excel format.

The information can be easily integrated into you existing contacts database be it an Access program, Filemaker Pro or whatever.

Each listing has an individual ID number to assist you if you want to merge this information with the Postal Address excel file.

Please note that each listing is for an individual office and two or more offices may share the same email addresses, as can be seen here with ID numbers 79 and 80.

Likewise the postal addresses can be downloaded in excel format by clicking the button shown below. This information can be integrated into your existing contacts database to allow you to print address labels with the minimum of fuss.

Other features available to subscribers are the 'View Latest Listings'...

...and 'View Latest Updates' buttons.

The 'View Latest Listings' button allows you to view those agents who have joined the database within the last 30 days.

EAGD checks all new listings to ensure they are all bone fide recruiters of students for study abroad.

A regular check of this list should ensure you are in contact with these agents before your competitors are.

The 'View Latest Updates' button similarly lists those agents who have updated their details within the last 30 days, allowing you to check at a glance if any of your established agents are included.

You will then be able to view what details have changed and update your own contacts database accordingly.

This concludes our brief demonstration of the main functions of the Education Agents Global Database.
